

Adrian Marshall - Bio

Adrian Marshall is the 2016 Executive Vice President of Junior Chamber International Atlanta. As EVP, Adrian acts as a coach to the other board members and ensures adequate resources are available to the chapter. Adrian got involved with JCI after moving to Atlanta for work and attending a very motivating guest speaker event that the Jaycees had going on. After attending quite a bit of networking and guest speaker events Adrian joined the board in 2015 as VP of Recruitment. During his time in the Recruitment chair he met with many different people throughout Atlanta to provide them with information about JCI and it's local Atlanta chapter. At the end of the 2015 year he was voted into his current VP role.

Prior to Joining JCI, Adrian graduated from Georgia Southern University with a Computer Science degree. He currently works as a Software Developer at General Motors where he spends a lot of his time developing software and solving problems. Working in this environment has helped him with working in teams and collaborating effectively.

Adrian has been involved with philanthropic efforts with both his job, GM, and his non-profit, JCI. In 2015 Adrian helped to coordinate a GM Golf outing that raised funds to support womens Breast Cancer. Having family that has dealt with this before he found this cause very important to support. Later that year he actively participated in JCI Atlanta's Cocktails For Camp, in which they raise money for a Camp in need.

All together Adrian tries to continuously learn in his role as a Software Developer and learning new things in the non-profit world that will make him a better person, a better asset, and a better leader.
